January 2020 Featured Artist: Peter J. Nolan

The textures and character of the Everglades were implanted in Peter J. Nolan's imagination long before he first picked up a camera.

"I remember as a child driving across the Tamiami Trail (Highway 41) with my family and looking out at the cypress trees. I loved the way they looked...the leafless and twisted branches seemed anthropomorphic," Peter explained.

Peter has made more than 50 solo hikes in Big Cypress Natural Preserve and captures his most arresting images during these solitary expeditions.

Nolan uses a variety of techniques to translate his vision of the Everglades, including large format film, stitched digital panoramics, and infrared digital.
